“Engaging Inpatient Psychiatric Nurses in Defining and Promoting Evidence Based, High Quality, Patient Centered Care”

This workshop offers a “How to” field guide for engaging inpatient staff nurses in articulation of practice expertise. Using a multifaceted council model and an award winning publication as an example, participants will develop a plan for outlining the process for participants and suggest strategies for moving projects forward.

Judy L. Sheehan MSN, RN
Joanne Matthew MS, PMHCNS BC

Workshop Objectives

1. Describe the potential impact mental health staff nurses can have on changing models of in‐patient care.

2. Analyze inpatient clinical settings for opportunities to articulate mental health nursing practice

3. Design at least one strategy for engaging staff nurses on inpatient units in the organizational change process

Disclosures

Presenters
Have no conflict of interest
Do not endorse any products
REFERENCES

Erickson, Sheila M. MBA, BSN, RN; McNamara, Tracey BSN, RN; Balanay, Toni BSN, RN; Fields, Willa DNSc, RNAJN,(2008) Clinical Nurses Find a Voice: How nursing practice councils succeeded at one hospital. American Journal of Nursing Issue: Volume 108(8), p 76–79

http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/books/NBK2634/

Nesse, R.,Stein D, BMC Medicine 2012, 10:5 (5)

Nix, J., Dillon, K., Hospital Community Psychiatry (1986) 37 (5):493-6

Skees, Janet DNP, RN, CNE (2010) Continuing Education: A Bridge to Excellence in Critical Care Nursing Critical Care Nursing Quarterly Volume 33 Number 2 Pages 104 – 116